Resurrection Mataro

Story behind the wine

Hiding under the Mourvèdre alias, Mataro has too often been relegated to the rank of a 'blends only' varietal. The time for a Resurrection is now. Driven by the new generation of Barossa winemakers, Mataro is once again taking its place as a single varietal of regional significance.

Having utilized Mataro for over a decade as a great blending varietal, we have come to appreciate it in its own right. With vibrant colour, spicy nose, blackcurrant characters and subtle earthiness, this wine takes its rightful place as a single varietal of note.

The winery

Langmeil Winery embodies the ideals inspired by the refinement of knowledge shared from generations of Barossans – real people making real wine. Family owned and operated, the Lindner family is dedicated to producing wines from the varieties that have proven their qualitative attributes for generations.

Winemaker's notes

2010 Vintage Report

The Barossa experienced its best rainfall in five years during the winter and spring of 2009 and provided good soil moisture for the onset of the growing season. Late spring was fairly mild with some moderately warm days, resulting in an early budburst. Warm and mild weather ensued for the remainder of the growing season so canopies remained very healthy and ripening accelerated for an early vintage. The onset of cool nights in mid-March slowed the final harvest for some later varieties and vineyards. In summary, the 2010 wines are proving that this has been an exceptional year for the Barossa.

Colour: Medium depth crimson with purple hues.

Aroma: Mulberry and blueberry aromas jump out of the glass with lovely milk chocolate and a hint of white pepper.

Palate: Yummy sweet fruit is the first impression, but this quickly changes to what Mataro is known for, pepper and spice. Medium bodied but very complex with very fine yet firm tannins, savoury notes and a little mineral streak which flows through the long and spicy finish.

Cellaring: 2011 – 2018
